I. COVID-19 MATTERS

Below are noteworthy updates and actions related to our COVID-19 efforts:

- SUNY Policy on Pre-Thanksgiving Break Testing
Chancellor Malatras recently announced a new SUNY system-wide policy, which mandates all students using on-campus facilities in any capacity to test negative for COVID-19 within the 10 days prior to leaving campus. The policy also strongly recommends that faculty and staff get a test during the same period.
- Pooled Testing
Faculty, staff and non-resident students who come to campus are now required to do saliva pooled COVID-19 testing. Feedback to date has been positive and those tested have noted it is a quick, easy process. Additional testing sites have been added at the Southampton Campus and Health Science Center and pooled saliva testing is also beginning for Stony Brook University Hospital employees. For more information, please visit the FAQ page on the Coming Back Safe and Strong website.
- Dr. Deborah Birx Visits Stony Brook
Dr. Deborah Birx, head of the White House Coronavirus Task Force, visited Stony Brook University on October 7. In a series of meetings, Dr. Birx met with University leadership, researchers, students, and members of the COVID Response Team. She received an overview of Stony Brook's response to the virus, including campus policies and medical research. Dr. Birx praised the University's success in controlling the spread of COVID-19 and emphasized steps that can be taken to help keep case numbers low in the future. She stressed the need for enhanced surveillance in order to head off any possible resurgence in the community. She also warned of a likely resurgence of the disease in the Northeast in the fall and noted that this will be driven by smaller events like family gatherings. Dr. Birx also emphasized the importance of masks and physical distancing as residents move indoors during the colder months.

VI. NONDISCRIMINATION STATEMENT & TITLE IX NOTICE

At a time when systemic inequity and discrimination have been painfully evident in so many aspects of our society, I have found hope in the groundswell of voices that are calling on us to live up to our values as a nation and a learning community. That’s why it has never been more important to reiterate Stony Brook University’s commitment to creating and fostering a learning, working, and living environment that is free from discrimination and sexual harassment. Stony Brook University prohibits discrimination and harassment based on race, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, religion, age, color, creed, national or ethnic origin, disability, marital status, familial status, pregnancy, genetic predisposition, criminal convictions, domestic violence victim status, veteran or military status, and all other protected classes under federal or state laws.

We must familiarize ourselves with the policies that affect our daily interactions with others on campus, whether it be students, faculty, staff, visitors, or patients in our care. Please take the time to review the University’s Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Policy (P105) and Sexual Misconduct and Reporting Policy (P106). Both policies are vital to creating and maintaining a community where our diverse population can live, work, study, and recreate in an atmosphere of tolerance, civility, equity, equal employment opportunity, and respect for every individual.

To report a discrimination or sexual misconduct matter, please contact the Assistant Vice President, Title IX, and ADA Coordinator of the Office Equity and Access (OEA), Marjolie Leonard, at Marjolie.Leonard@stonybrook.edu.
